Paleontology and Geology of Laetoli: Human Evolution in Context - Terry Harrison 2011-01-27

This volume 2 and its companion volume 1 present the results of new investigations into the geology, paleontology and paleoecology of the early hominin site of Laetoli in northern Tanzania. The site is one of the most important paleontological and paleoanthropological sites in Africa, worldrenowned for the discovery of fossils of the early hominin Australopithecus afarensis, as well as remarkable trails of its footprints. The first volume provides new evidence on the geology, geochronology, ecology, ecomorphology and taphonomy of the site. The second volume describes newly discovered fossil hominins from Laetoli, belonging to Australopithecus afarensis and Paranthropus aethiopicus, and presents detailed information on the systematics and paleobiology of the diverse associated fauna. Together, these contributions provide one of the most comprehensive accounts of a fossil hominin site, and they offer important new insights into the early stages of human evolution and its context.

Bede, the Schools, and the Computus - Charles Williams Jones 1994

Charles W Jones edited both literary and scientific works of Bede, and he traced their sources from Egypt, Roman Africa, and Italy, through Spain, Gaul and Ireland to the library of his monastery at Jarrow. In these studies Jones analyses Bede's use of those sources for creating and explaining the European calendar which, despite later adjustments, still regulates modern consciousness of time. Included also are his analysis of Bede's Commentary on Genesis and the entire text of Bedae Pseudepigrapha (long out of print), in which the false attributions of numerous scientific works in the Patrologia Latinae are corrected. He found many manuscripts of these texts, and dated them and identified their sources. His work stands as a remarkable contribution to understanding Anglo-Saxon schools, history, culture and scientific knowledge, as well as Anglo-Saxon influence on the continent.

Under the Wire - William Ash 2005

"Bill Ash is one of a rare breed an American prepared to sacrifice his citizenship and risk his life to fight the Nazis at a time when the USA was still neutral. He joined the Royal Canadian Air Force and before long found himself in England and flying Spitfires in combat. Then, in March 1942, Bill was shot down over the Pas de Calais. He survived the crash-landing and, thanks to the bravery of local civilians, evaded capture for months. It was in Paris that he was betrayed to the Gestapo. Tortured and sentenced to death as a spy, he was saved from the firing squad by the intervention of the Luftwaffe who sent him to the Great Escape' POW camp, Stalag Luft III. It was from there that Bill - already branded a trouble-maker by his captors - began his extraordinary tour' of Occupied Europe, breaking out of one camp, being dispatched to the next in Poland, Germany and Lithuania. Bill became one of only a handful of serial escape artists to attempt more than a dozen break-outs over the wire, under it in tunnels, through it with cutters or simply strolling out of the camp gates in disguise. These were years of extraordinary hardship, frustration and brutality each time he was r
